“ I had only just met Alyssa this semester, but her personality was energetic and magnetic. Her passing hit me harder than I anticipated, since I hadn't really had an opportunity to know. I'm certain that the world is worse off without her presence in it and Heaven has gained an unbelievable Angel.

“ Alyssa was my first friend at NSU. She was so excited about getting her degree and determined to help people in any way she could find. She was so proud of her family, too. She is missed greatly and our cohort will never forget her as we serve others in her honor.

“ Alyssa and I worked together for 12 hours every Saturday at DVIS. We became fast friends with our matching bubbly personalities! Alyssa was so much like me 15 years ago, young, with a child, thinking of getting her degree but doubting herself. I remember the talks we had where I mainly lectured her to NEVER doubt herself- she was so intelligent, brave, and had a heart and a brain for social work. This year seeing her graduate was such a treat to me! I still can't believe she isn't here anymore; my heart is broken for her husband, daughters and entire family. I attended her wedding and her family was just lovely. I know their hearts are broken. My prayers go out for their comfort. Cristian, if you need anything for you or the girls, you have an "army" or women around you that are ready to help. That's what Alyssa would have done and that's what her friends will do also. Fly high, Alyssa, and know how truly missed you will be. ❤️
