My second momma. Aunt Joyce was one of a kind. She was unique & very special to all who knew her. She was not only beautiful on the outside but she was a beautiful human being on the inside. She was intelligent, talented, artistic, creative & she loved everyone in her life very deeply. Many times, we would stay up until the wee hours of the morning talking about everything and I do mean evvverything. She was not afraid to speak her mind. And even though we had a few arguments & disagreements, she would always hug me & love on me the next time I saw her. She was a damn good cook & made the best pork chops with mushroom gravy. I don't care if her left overs were a week old, they were still delicious & I ate every bit of it. I have so many wonderful memories. One time when I was little, we were in the back of a pick up truck & I was freezing cold & shivering. She pulled her slip out from under her dress, wrapped me up in it, & held me close to keep me warm. She taught me how to twist my earlobes & slurp spaghetti. She let me cut donuts in an empty parking lot until we were both laughing so hard our sides hurt. I love you so very much Aunt Joyce & I miss you. But I know that everything of this earth will return to this earth in ash & dust. But we are of God. We belonged to him even before we were in our mother's womb. And eventually, each & every one of us will return to him. I still have treasures on this earth but I also have treasures waiting for me in heaven. And now, Aunt Joyce, you are one of those treasures.

“ I remember the first time I met my cousins I was in first grade. Joyce is what I called her and she was the baby of the family and a couple years younger than me. June, Barbara, Nathan, Darlene, Norma Jean and Linda were her siblings that I met and loved immediately. We grew up together. My sister Marsha and I actually lived with Aunt Faye, Joyce, June, Barbara and Nathan for a time. Joyce was more like a sister to me than a cousin. We fussed and fought just like it. She was the last of that entire family of cousins of mine and I am saddened to lose her but she has moved on just like the rest of us will someday. The trouble is, you think you have time. I love you Ava Joyce.
