“ I knew of Chris through my dad years before I got to meet him in 1992. He was 31 and I was 20. Chris was hilarious most of the time and challenging at others, but he was someone who could always be counted on. We worked together from 1992 until he retired in 2022. He has helped me mature through my younger adulthood and has taught me many things. He holds a tender spot in my heart, as does Austin. He will be greatly missed.
