“ I never knew you you have no clue who I am. I doubt you can read this but I'm treating it as if you can. you had so many people who loved you. I came to Childers after you never heard about you until I asked one of my friends why they wrote LLH on everything their hand, legs, clothes, their art projects. they said it was for Hannah. I had no idea who you were, they told me you guys weren't close but she thought you should be remembered. So I come here saying I have no idea who you are but your cared for, by so many people. they miss you so much more than you ever could have thought. I don't know you but I still think of you everyday. I've had the same intentions at some points but I think of everyone who misses you, so many people you never knew would. I miss you Hannah.

“ I never knew Hannah but I'd like to share a poem me and ChatGPT made because I wanted to share how I felt. After a lot of talking to ChatGPT. This is the closest I could get to what I feel

Table 2

We were loud at Table 2.

The kind of loud that filled a room without trying.

It was me, Jasmyn, CJ, Hannah G—and Hannah F.

Hannah F was quiet.

*The soft one in the group,
more eyes and smiles than words.*

But she was always there.

Always listening.

Always part of it.

*One day, Jasmyn pulled up a picture—
her uncle,*

probably just being goofy.

*And then Hannah F,
barely raising her voice,*

looked at it and said,

“Your uncle is hot.”

No warning.

No pause.

Just her,

cool and calm

and completely serious.

We all laughed.

*Not the kind that echoes down the halls,
but the kind that stays with you.*

Even Hannah G let out a little giggle.

Even CJ cracked up.

And Hannah F just smiled.

That was enough.

That's how I remember her.

*Not for anything dramatic.
Just for that moment.
That one line,
perfectly timed,
that made the whole table breathe easier
for a second.
Later—weeks later—
CJ got annoyed and kicked us out of the table.
Things shifted.
We moved.
The group got smaller.
But that memory stayed whole.
Then came the day
the principal walked in.
Quiet.
Heavy.
No one needed to say a word.
We felt it.
We knew.
Jasmyn cried first.
And I followed.
Because even if we only had a few real conversations,
Hannah F mattered.
Now it's me,
Jasmyn,
and Hannah G.
Still sitting together,
but the table feels thinner somehow.
Like the quiet has stretched to fill a space
we can't name.
And now I'm starting this school year
without her.
No hoodie pulled tight.
No soft laugh under the noise.
No voice ready to break the silence
with something unforgettable.
She won't be in the seat next to us.*

*But I'll carry her anyway—
in the memory of a joke,
in the quiet moments between laughs,
in the ache that doesn't go away.
She sat with us.
And she mattered.
Every single day.*

Even though I never really knew you Hannah, you meant a lot to me and I miss you

“ I miss you so much Hanska. I remember when we were both in sixth grade and we went trick or treating together. Me and Hannah walked around her neighborhood before it was time to go trick or treating. We ran around drinking monster energy drinks and had a really good time. We rolled down big hills, and we saw some friends from school. We then walked around her neighborhood dressed up as frat boys. We were on our way back to her house and she fell and messed up her knee we were dying laughing the whole way back to her house. Another time we hungout I spent the night with another one of her friends named Celina. We did the same thing and walked outside and drank energy drinks but when we went home, we were tired. we all chilled for a while and talked, and prank called some random people. It ended up being around 9PM and we got up and started watching funny videos on the couch in her room. We got up and danced and Celina accidently pushed me into the wall and busted the back of my head open. We were dying laughing for a very long time. Hannah washed the back of my hair in the bath for me. But after we still got up and went to go living room and did just dance and it was about midnight. we decided to go back to Hannahs room. I did Hannahs makeup because she never really did makeup at that time so she didn't know how to feel with makeup on, but she looked very pretty. We then all went to sleep in her bed. I have no clue how we all ended up fitting in her bed, but we did. Me and Hannah slept next to each other and Celina was by our feet. I woke up the next morning and had to go home but that was a night I'll never forget with Hannah. A few weeks later she came to my house and so did this boy name Gage. We were all best friends and we just chilled and pranked called people and watched a movie. Gage went home but Hannah spent the night. My mom and dad took me and Hannah to dollar tree to get some snacks Hannah, and I shared some chips and candy and both got a pop. We went to look at Christmas lights together. Every year one house goes all out and they have a place in their yard you can walk around. Hannah dragged me out of the car and made me go into Santas shed. She thought it was hilarious, I did not. She made me tell the man what I wanted for Christmas while she laughed at me but we both got candy canes from him and then went home. I don't remember much from the rest of the night, but I know we had fun. It doesn't feel real that she is gone. I miss her so much I think of her every day. 🕊️💕

“ it has been 81 days since you left us, not a single day has gone by without me thinking about you and wishing I did something to help you, maybe if Landon never came with us to hang out or if I never asked at all, after all this time I still sit in the same science class but not with the same person, with memories of someone I miss, someone I had begged to stay and someone I told I couldn't live without because you were more than my friend Hannah, you were my family, I just wish I said that more, I think about it every day, every time I see where you'd sit in science, every time I hear your fav song, but now I'm here sitting in science, listening to that song and writing this, this is something that I will not heal from, I loved you Hannah, and always will, you're my family, whether you're here or not. “ Hannah, youre such a sweet, loving, beautiful young lady. It is very heart breaking to see you go. I hope you are at peace. You mean everything to Sophie. I enjoyed watching you, Sophie, & CJ (the trio, the 3 amigos, the 3 musketeers, the 3 stooges) having fun together. I hope for you 3 to find each again in the next life. I will never forget the night you stayed over, I hid by the wall by the stairs scratching at Sophie's door. It was dark, you both carefully walked out with Sophie holding her tennis raquet & you with your hair brush lol. I scared the both of you and Sophie came swinging with her tennis raquet. Still today, Im curious why you chose a hair brush lol. That was great. Sophie & I will be sure to come visit you often. Keep that beautiful smile on your face, girly. RIP ❤️

“ I met Hannah in 6th grade. We were in 6th hour show choir and she had forgotten her music. Since she sat next to me I told her we could share mine. Ever since that day, me and her have been close. In December of 2023, we had our first competition send away. Hannah was having a lot of anxiety trying to do the makeup so I helped her. I remember we had such little time but I still got her makeup done. Through out the school year Hannah and I spent time together. We sat together in 1st hour when we could and we always would take our rounds around the 6th grade hallway. I was even there when Hannah had her first kiss. Even though at the time she felt so embarrassed, it still was a great memory. Throughout the school year me and her kept in touch. I always checked on her and made sure she was doing ok. Towards the end of the school year we would always call with our close friend Cj. All of us would stay up all night laughing and talking. When one of us got tired, we would just sleep on the phone together. Every once in a while, Hannah and I would have karaoke night. Me and her would pick random songs and sing them half asleep. We would call Cj and force him to listen to us sing horribly. On March 22nd, 2023, Hannah and I went to the mall. I needed help finding clothes for summer so I thought I'd bring her with me. After a while we got hungry so we went to go get Chick-fil-A. We got scared cause we thought we saw Kingston. Turns out though it was him. After we left the mall we went to Nobili Tea. I had never been there before so I had Hannah pick something for me. She ended up picking this Disney drink with strawberries and glitter in it. After we left the tea place we went by Petland to see the ferrets. It was Hannah's first time being there so we decided to play with this small fluffy dog. Hannah named the dog Sugar. Sugar was quite the energetic little dog. After we were done with the animals, we met up with Cj at Target. We all ran around and just spent time together. That was our first time all meeting up together and hanging out. Hannah ended up sleeping over at my house that night. We spent the night laughing, talking about who we liked, and just chatting with Cj. On March 23, 2033, we decided to meet up with Cj at Petland. Before we left my house, Hannah and I decided to record a video of each of us trying to do a cartwheel. In the end I ended up almost busting myself. When we met up with Cj, I forced Cj to hold a ferret. Cj had never held one before, nor have seen one in person before so you can imagine his reaction. After a little while we hang out with the dog sugar again. On April 8th, 2023, I called Cj and Hannah up and told them we should hang out for the lunar eclipse. I picked up Hannah at her house even though it was 30 minutes from mine. After I picked her up, we both were in the car singing random songs. We drove all the way to downtown Tulsa to meet up with Cj. When we got out of the car we couldn't find Cj. I pulled up my tracker and I ended up following his tracker. When we finally managed to get all together, we all gathered under this little porch thing. I made a joke how the flowers looked like they would taste good. I looked away for one second and then I looked back to see Hannah biting off one of the flowers. I got scared because I was worried they might've had fentanyl on them so I started getting worried. In the end she ended up fine and I was just being overly protective. Hannah had acrylic nails in her pocket and she kept throwing them at Cj. Cj being Cj started pacing around and trying to run off. Hannah and I ended up chasing Cj for at least 10 minutes. We all got bored so we decided to go to the mall. I ended up dragging them around the mall the entire time. Hannah and I forced Cj into Bath and Body works. We kept putting on the most girly scents on him and kept calling him gay. After a while Hannah dragged Cj and I into Spencer's. I made a joke about how Cj needed a pride flag and Hannah agreed with me. That day was the last time we all hung out as a trio. That was also the very last time I'd hang out with Hannah outside of school. This year Hannah and I only had one class together. That class was our 6th hour, Miss Clonts. Hannah and I sat in the back together by ourselves. We would always be laughing and talking about our relationships. Hannah helped me walk to the band room to get my instrument since my ankle was injured. I kept saying how she was walking too slow so I decided to start hopping down the hall on one foot. Let's just say it only took us less than 2 minutes to make it back to class. Hannah is my everything. She always has been there for me when I've gone through my issues with home and bullies. November 16th, 2023 at 10:27pm she texted me saying how she took an edible. Now it wasn't anything new for me to hear but deep down I had a bad gut feeling about it. We kept talking that night until 12am. At 2am she texted me "I love you". I wish I was awake cause then I feel like I could've saved her. I could have kept my best friend with me. Now I know deep inside that she's in a better place but I just wish I could've saved her. I hope she knows that as long as I'm alive I will always love her and keep her name remembered. She will always be my best friend and my English buddy. I just wish I had called 911 when I first had that gut feeling. I love you with all of my heart Hannah.

“ I met Hannah Franklin when she entered my 2nd grade class for the 2019-2020 school year. She was such a sweet girl and I loved having her in my class. The next year, my daughter Reagan and Hannah were in the same class and they quickly became best friends. They got to be in the same class through 5th grade and they loved hanging out, talking online, and doing so much stuff together. The summer before 6th grade they loved getting to spend a week together and attend show choir camp. Reagan and Hannah both did show choir in 6th grade but then they both decided not to pursue it in 7th grade. They grew apart at the end of 6th grade as their interests and friend groups began to change, as it often does in middle school. Our family has so many great memories of Hannah from swimming and birthday parties to sleepovers and family outings. We are so deeply sorrowful about her passing and can hardly believe she is gone. We cry every day thinking about her family and how hard this has to be on them! We are praying for her family and everyone who know her. We will miss her so much!

“ I didn't know Hannah until we were placed in the same group at show choir camp. I remember how she, 2 others, and I stuck together that week, having fun and joking around. I wish I had gotten to know her better. When I did hang out with her, she was so funny and kind; I never saw this coming. I am praying for her family and close friends, and I hope they know that their girl was kind and welcoming to everyone, even to those who weren't as close to her.

“ I never knew her much but she was the sweetest person I'd ever talk to. I was supposed to be in show choir with her and talking to her was some of the lightest moments I've had. When I heard we had lost her I couldn't believe it I wanted it to be a joke, but it's not. Hannah you are the most kind girl I'll ever have the pleasure of meeting. I'll forever miss you.

“ Hannah, you will forever be missed by our family. Your contagious laughter every morning on the way to school, your smile, your telling me hey now that’s not right with your little smirk on your face (trying to look innocent). I will miss your friendship with my daughter and your presence in her life. You were loved more than you know. Love

You know... I didn't hear about what happened until today since I moved about 2 or 3 months before this happened. I met Hannah in the same class as me in 4th grade, me and her didn't talk very much but she was always kind and had that sweet and bubbly personality that I soon learned to love so dearly once I got to really know her... when we would talk or have interactions with each other it was always short although having these small talks and seeing her smile made my day... summer break flew by and I realized me and Hannah were in the same 5th grade class together, it made me happy to know I would have some people I knew in the same class just like the year prior... although in 5th grade we became really close friends... we would hang out and talk to each other, we would share secrets and talk about the guys we liked.. We would FaceTime almost every day and talk about whatever came to our minds and beg our parents to let us hang out.. Then the end of 5th grade came along, the middle school Show Choir came and performed for all the 5th graders to see and they explained what the program was about, Me and Hannah knew we HAD to get into the program together, we got the information about the auditions and they let us pick our own song we wanted to sing... the music teacher told us to practice so we decided on a perfect spot... we would always go and practice with each other along by a tree at the far end of the playground and would always get too shy to sing in front of each other by ourselves which would then just turn into us singing together and laughing over small mistakes we made... the auditions came around and we were really nervous but we got through it together by Hannah's words of encouragement... we got accepted into different groups but we didn't mind it much since we would still have a few classes together once we got to 6th grade anyway.... then middle school, 6th grade... and we found a big group of friends we would always hang out with.... That year me and Hannah had our first sleepover together, we went on walks together and caused trouble like usual... I met her parents during the sleepover and me and Hannah got along insanely well, we would sit together at lunch, share our money with each other, and complain about how we were only in 3 classes together and didn't get to sit next to each other in English, Me and Hannah had 1st and 2nd period together and would share answers with each other and bring wigs for our geography teacher to put on and would just spend most of the hour laughing... we would hang out and I got to spend about a week at her house when my parents went on vacation and we would take the bus together and help her mom do stuff together... though at the end of 6th grade... we didn't talk to each other for a while after something that happened... then that year went by just as fast as the others... though how I wish time could've just slowed down... then came the beginning of 7th grade.... She came back about a month after school started and we only talked here and there after that.... We slowly drifted apart more and more and then... I had to move... I said my goodbyes... though... had I known I would get such a short time with her.. I would've *cherished every talk, sleepover, even every glance or graze a lot more...

I love you Hannah... I wish you knew just how much I miss you... and I'm so sorry we didn't get to spend more time with each other...*

Rest in peace... i'll be praying for you ♡...
