“ I sat with Larry one Wednesday at midweek, and he told me about being an electrician for forty years. He told me about growing up, about his wife, and that I should really enjoy life as it goes. He told me about the pacemaker in his heart, and laughed about how one Sunday, in the middle of the sermon, it shocked him and his hands flew right up in the air. We shared a good laugh over some lemonade. Larry was a good man, and he made a wonderful impact on the youth, and me. I hope that I can one day be as great as him.
