“ I knew Patrick through his brother as he returned to Oklahoma at the time, although we both came from a very different background, he greeted me in such a manner that I immediately feel welcome in his presence, Patrick was a kind of man who is so wise in every subjects we talk about, the way he speaks with such convictions is one of his character traits that I have picked up, and try so hard to emulate from the times I had privilege to spent in his company.

*I am sure that I am only one of many lives he has touched, but there has never been a day when I do not think about you, friend. When you cheated in a card game, when you made a gourmet meal out of leftovers, the way you put your son to sleep, when you singlehandedly moved all my furnitures from one apartment to another. Thank you for everything, Patrick.
You were taking from us way too soon.*
