“ Summer, I don't know what to say really.. Once we got to know each other, you were really a sweet person.. This was such a shock when I heard of you passing.. So young and beautiful, gone way to soon.. Give Jerry Wayne a big ol hug and kiss from me and you two don't raise to much trouble in Heaven..

“ Summer. Oh girl. The memories we have shared. So so many. Geeze, did we give our teachers a run for their money in school. You and me were thick as thieves, girl. I've loved our random run in's over the years. Selfishly, wish we had more time together. I am still in great shock as all of us are. Fly high my precious friend.

“ Summer I still can't believe this is really happening. Not being able to pick up the phone to call you for advice, encouragement, or just a good laugh is going to be unbearable. We've shared so many good times and adventures down through the years it's hard to believe there won't be any more. "Cuz" I love you more than you will ever know. You will always be in my thoughts and forever dearly missed. Fly high Cuz! You and Jerry try not to raise too much hell up there without me. Until we meet again

“ Oh, Summer. I have so much to say, but don't even know how to start or even put it in writing. I wish I could turn back time. The last 2 days, I have shared so many stories of our shenanigans. (Not all, I got you girl 😊) My heart is broken and it hurts to think I'll not see you on this Earth again. But, until we meet again, I love you sis.

“ Summer was the most beautiful girl in school. I always felt so cool when I got to ride around in her yellow car. I remember meeting Bailey as a newborn and Summer looking at me when I came in the house and saying, “I’m a mom now!” When I became a grandmother myself last year, Summer told me how it was the greatest thing ever and how honored she felt that she got to watch her grandson. Her love for her family and babies was a beautiful thing. Until we meet again, I love you always Summer Wummer. May your resilient spirit be carried on through all of your children and grandson.
